WebDev Reflextion

By Lawrence Alexander Philbert

Ive learnt a lot this term about how to build a website, it has been on my list of things to do but it always seemed to be so daunting.

Now I know its not so bad, but does require a lot of tweaks and touches to get right.

Ive restarted my website 3 times this term a feel there is a big improvement in both code and design.

Im proud of what ive accomplished even if it is very different than what I had originally set out to do with the first wireframe (and honestly, its for the best).

If given more time, I feel I will be able to clean up the look and the css sheet even more.